James Bevan arrived at Port Phillip in 1848. He had contracts to maintain the roads between 1854 and 1859. In 1860 he purchased a Cobb & Co coach route from Melbourne to Beechworth and prospered. He built one of the first mansions in Melbourne and named it Grosport after the town in Monumontshire, England where he was born. He had horse racing interests and in 1859 won the Melbourne Hunt Club Annual Steeplechase with his horse, Bobby. This magnificent trophy was the predecessor of the Melbourne Cup. In 1864 Bevan was one of 32 founder members of the Victoria Racing Club. In 1865 he and his wife Elizabeth took a trip to England and on the return trip in 1866, with their nephew B.Bevan who was emigrating to Australia, the ship sank in the Bay of Biscay with only 19 survivors from 270 passengers. James Bevan's son, James Alfred Bevan, born in Melbourne in 1858 but was educated in England, was appointed as the captain of the first Wales XV. He later went on to become an Anglican Minister.

Formed in 1824 by a group of London merchants to establish a fine wool venture in Tasmania to supply the British textile industry. Receiving a Royal Charter in 1825 the VDL Company was granted 250,000 acres in north-west Tasmania. On October 24 1826 the Company established a settlement at Circular Head with farm labour, livestock including 46 Cotswold sheep arriving from London aboard the 'Tranmere'. Outpost stations were set up at Woolnorth, Emu Bay, Surrey Hills and Hampshire Hills. The VDL Company's circumstances fluctuated over the years with the farming operations being wound up in 1850s. In the 1870s a decision was made by the London directors to resume farming at Woolnorth introducing cattle and horse breeding as well setting up other business ventures such as the Mount Biscoff railway, as well as sawmills and brickworks. In 1993 majority ownership of the Company was bought by Tasman Agricultural Ltd, retaining the name Van Diemen's Land Company.

The account of the issue of notes by Captain G.E. Read appears in R.P.Hargreaves book 'From Beads to Banknotes' (p75-6). Hargreaves describes the note issue as follows: 'Outside Otago, the only other known issue of private paper money in the 1860's occurred in Poverty Bay, where one pound and five pound notes were issued by Captain G.E. Read. The notes, printed on pink paper were less ornate than their Otago contemporaries. Captain Read was a pioneer settler in the area, and is generally given credit for the foundation of the town of Gisborne, where he arrived in 1852. Read has been described by one East Coast historian as the area's most colourful, most enterprising, and most prosperous pioneer and was regarded as 'the uncrowned king of Poverty Bay'. According to Sutherland, Read issued his notes as an advance to pay troops engaged in the Maori Wars, although they are said to have circulated amongst local Maoris as well. It has been recounted that the latter, after quarrelling with Read, would enter his store, take some of the Read notes from their pockets and tear them up in order to express their contempt for him. Read, it is said, would pretend to get into a violent rage, and chase his 'enemy' from the store, while silently rejoicing in the profit he had made. Admittedly such an event may have occurred once or twice, but it is suggesting a widespread naivety amongst the Maoris concerning paper money which, in fact, did not exist. The Read notes, unlike those issued in the south, were payable to bearer 'on demand'. Just how this was possible under the existing legal restrictions remains to be explained as all the known copies of the notes are unsigned and unissued. It is possible that the notes like the Otago Banking Company notes, were never in fact issued. Hargreaves illustrates a note with the number 2833 in the Hocken library for a value of one pound.

Together with a handwritten note 'This is one of a batch of unsigned notes that was stolen at Wairoa, Gisborne or Tolaga Bay (or somewhere in that region) in the early 1920's. It came into my cash thro' the exchanges from the B.N.Z. following the local races when I was employed as a teller at Hastings Branch. It was not discovered until time permitted me to sort up the notes which was two or three days later. The bank refused to pay out as all tellers had been advised of the theft and that these notes were floating about the country. $7,000

According to Robert Pepping in his book 'New Zealand History Noted', six million one pound notes were ordered by the Reserve Bank Board in February of 1934. The first prefixes are recorded as A, 1A, 2A, 3A, 4A and 5A and logic would dictate that they were issued to the public in prefix order. The number A 000001 was the first No.1 pound issued and this was presented to the then Minister of Finance, Gordon Coates (Pepping p.8). The second prefix being 1A and this note numbered 000001 would have been the first No.1 available to the public and was probably souvenired at the time of the release of the new Reserve Bank notes, possibly by a bank employee.

This note was used as payment for a room at the Alexandra Hotel in 1935. The hotel owners recognising that the note was 'special' decided to frame it and hang it on the wall. It remained with the family until quite recently. The old frame is being sold as part of the lot.
