- The following 31 lots represent the Bill Johnson Diecast Toy Aircraft Collection. It contains 671 aircraft (620) and helicopters (51) mostly of military significance. This collection represents the largest offering of this type in Australia. The Johnson collection, formed over the last 50 years is in a scale of 1/72 to 1/600. The collection has some of the rarest examples of these models including a Pennytoy Simon and Rivollet Bleriot XI (the first diecast toy aircraft ever made c.1910-1935. Also are several unpublished examples coming from this collection, not published in the book by Sue Richardson "Diecast Toy Aircraft", London, 1997. They include Winn-A-Toy Airspeed Envoy; Pope Industries B29 Bomber; V-Toy DH35 and single engine Fighter (in lead) and several other micro models. These diecast models were made from over a dozen countries, and as a collection is almost impossible to duplicate.

With research. In 1886 the Canadian Voyageurs - three hundred and seventy seven Canadian civilian boatmen and their seven officers and eight 'wheelmen' were each awarded the Egypt Medal and the Khedive's Star for their services during a Lord Wolseley's expedition to relieve General Gordon at Khartoum. Wolseley's plan called for the transport of part of his force by boat up the Nile River and, based upon his service in the 1870 Red River Expedition in Canada, he felt that Canadian boatmen had the necessary knowledge and experience to navigate successfully the treacherous cataracts of the Nile. Consequently, advertisements were placed in Canadian newspapers in August 1884 for 'good boatmen . to accompany English Expedition up the Nile to steer boats through the rapids and do all necessary portaging'. The response came from Indians and white men alike, most of whom were normally engaged as raftsmen in the lumber trade in eastern Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. They reported in Ottawa on 6 September 1884, received outfits and free rations and sailed from Quebec on 16 September under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Frederick C. Denison. Although they remained civilians, the Voyageurs were subject to the authority of their foremen and of the officers of the Canadian Militia who accompanied them.

John Frederick Blake. Chief Supt Blake joined the Metropolitan Police in 1925. He was promoted to Sergeant in 1932, Station Sergeant in 1938, Inspector in 1943, Chief Inspector in 1950, Staff Officer to the Commander of No.3 District in 1954 and Chief Superintendent in 1956. He was in charge of F Division which included Kensington Palace, a number of Embassies, Earls Court and Olympia Exhibitions, White City Stadium and Notting Hill area. He was awarded the George Medal in 1941 for gallantry in an air raid at Poplar. He attended the first 'B' Course at the Police College in 1948 and was Deputy Commandant of the Police Camp at Kensington Gardens during the Coronation in 1953. During his service he was awarded seven commendations. G.M. L.G.: 21Nov1941 pp.6691/2, Station Police Sergeant L Division Metropolitan Police. "A bomb fell on a warehouse and the whole superstructure collapsed onto a large public shelter. The roof was blown in and all the entrances were blocked. Constables Hall and Edwards, who were off duty, volunteered to go to the incident with a police party under the leadership of Station Sergeant Blake. There were many tons of debris piled above and around the demolished shelter and there was constant danger of collapse. Large quantities of masonry were hanging precariously from the upper storeys of the building, the sides of which were still standing. The escape hatch-covers were covered with debris and when this had been dug away, the hatchway itself was found to be choked by masses of brickwork and concrete. In spite of the danger the three men tunnelled their way through the debris and found four trapped and injured people about ten feet inside the shelter. These were freed and carried out. Continuing their search they found and rescued several more people and as there was not enough room for three men to work effectively, Blake left the Constables to carry on and went to supervise the removal of the rescued people. The Officers worked unceasingly until everything possible had been done. Edwards and Hall continuously risked their lives while they were tunnelling through debris and bringing the people out. Station Police Sergeant Blake not only took his share in the danger of tunnelling and rescue work but also provided the essential element of organising ability which dealt with each new difficulty as it occurred and ensured that the efforts of the rescuers were not wasted". Chief Supt. F.J.Blake, G.M. (Metropolitan). Q.P.M. L.G.: 10Jun1961. Together with photocopies of London Gazette for G.M. and Police Review.

After the war T.L.Jones took up an appointment in the Federation of Malaya Police Force as a Police Lieutenant then at the completion of his contract he gained an appointment in the Cyprus Police Force to qualify for that bar also. He should just have the one GSM with three bars, however he received the two GSMs which is not uncommon in these circumstances.

He stabbed one Sikh shopkeeper and ran off chased by another Sikh bystander who raised the alarm. Head Constable Harbans Lal, whose house was nearby, looking out, saw pedestrians fleeing from the path of this homicidal maniac and at once ran down the street in pursuit. The criminal, pressed by the original pusuer, turned and knifed him, by this time all other spectators had fled in terror except Lance Head Constable Noor Mohammed, on duty further along the Bazar, who took up the chase armed only with a bamboo. Head Constable Harbans Lal also seized a bamboo from a shop front and the two policemen caught up with the criminal, who by this time had stabbed more Hindus in his flight down the Bazar. The two policemen brought the criminal to bay and between them overpowered him after a desperate fight in which both Police Officers sustained knife wounds."
